

Nicki Baker

Contact:
nicola.baker@uea.ac.uk

Hi!

My name is Nicki and I am a university student.

I am doing some research – I would love you to be a part of it!

My research is aiming to find out what positive experiences young people with Down syndrome had at school.

This information can be used to help schools ensure that other young people with Down syndrome can have a positive experience too!

To be part of my study you need to:

- Have Down syndrome
- Be between the ages of 16 and 25
- Have been to a mainstream school for at least part of your education, but don't worry if this was only a short while
- To be able to share what you remember about your education (any part of it, just whatever you remember the most). This can include primary school, secondary school, specialist provisions etc.
- Want to be a part of my study! This means you will want to share with me some information about your experience of school

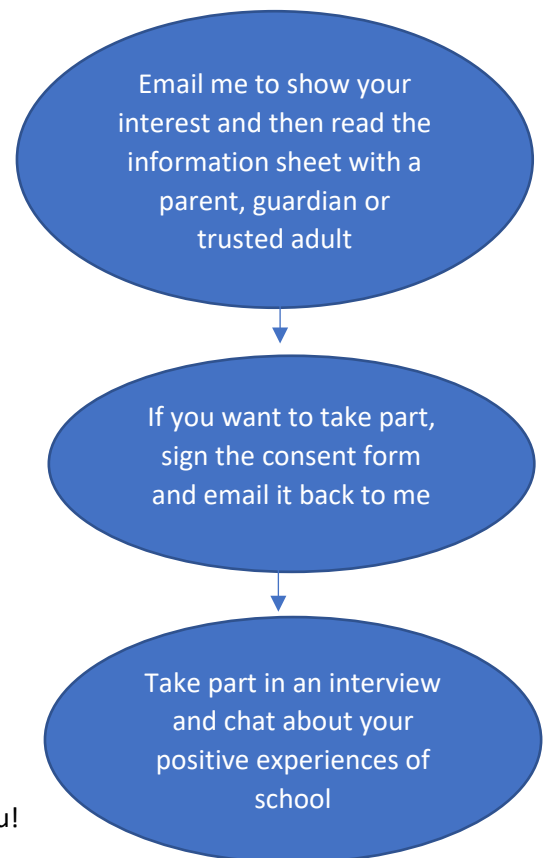

I would love to be able to meet you and ask you some questions about when you went to school! We will focus on what you liked about school and the positive experiences you had.

You can bring anything along with you to help you explain your school experience! This could be pictures, letters, objects, toys, books, school reports or ANYTHING! You can even bring another adult with you to support you and help explain your ideas

If you think you want to do this, please email me for the information sheet that explains all of the details. Please read it with your parent or carer and decide if you would like to join my study!

Thank you – I can't wait to hear from you!
Nicki

How to participate in my study:

For a video explaining this study, right click here and open the hyperlink:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=KQKp-Lvh-cA&fbclid=IwAR3d8nqoyZJc4k9->